TEEN COURT OVERVIEW

Teen Court is a program that offers teenage offenders (defined as respondents) an important second chance to learn from their mistake without the high cost of a criminal record.

It is a real justice program run by teens for teens; i.e., juveniles aged 11 through 17 who have committed a crime (generally a misdemeanor) appear before a jury of their peers. The crime is usually a first offense, and the respondent must admit involvement (guilt) since this is a disposition (sentencing) hearing only.

Teen Court is offered as a positive experience to divert a first-time teen offender away from a pattern of criminal behavior. Offenses generally include theft, vandalism, possession of alcohol, assault, etc.

In Teen court, volunteer teens perform the roles of the clerk and jury.

After hearing the case, the teen jury determines a disposition for the offense based upon sentencing guidelines. After careful consideration of the facts, the jury deliberates and decides upon a constructive disposition, including a minimum number of community service hours and serving on a teen jury. Also, the respondent may be assigned educational programs, essays and/or apology letters. Restorative justice principles are followed-what is best for the respondent, the victim, and the community at large.

The offender then has the chance to complete the disposition within 45 days and have the original charge dismissed. If the disposition is not completed, the case is sent back to the referring agency.

JOB DESCRIPTION FOR JURY MEMBERS

As a juror on the Teen Court, you will have an opportunity to participate in a very important part of our democracy. Jury duty is a privilege and a serious responsibility. Jurors must arrive 30 minutes before court starts and check in with the Teen Court Staff. You must listen to the case without prejudice and render a fair disposition. You are required to base your disposition upon the evidence as you hear it in court, the judge's instructions, and the Disposition Guidelines.

Remember, offenders have admitted to being involved in the offense; therefore, this procedure is for the purpose of hearing the facts and assigning a fair consequence.

You are obligated to perform honestly and conscientiously, without fear or favor. If you are acquainted with the respondent, please advise a Teen Court Staff member or the judge to excuse you from the proceeding. Inform the Teen Court Staff that you are available to serve on another jury.

Generally, the jury shall consist of a maximum of twelve jurors. If there are six jurors, four jurors shall agree or two less than the total number of jurors shall agree.

Jurors must be residents of or enrolled in school in Harford County, Maryland, and be in grades 8 through 12.

For cases involving a Peer Jury, the jurors will direct questions to the respondents rather than using teen attorneys.

Teen court should focus on restorative justice. This means that instead of thinking in terms of punitive action (punishing the respondent) you should consider how you can hold the offender accountable for their offense. Think about how the offender has harmed the victims and how they can repair the harm. Think about what the offender needs to become a more productive member of society and involve the community in the disposition.

HARFORD COUNTY TEEN COURT

JURY GUIDELINES

Serving as a juror is a serious matter. As a juror, you have the duty and obligation to maintain yourself in a professional and responsible manner. It is by your judgment alone that another person will have to serve his or her disposition for an act of delinquency.

1. When the judge asks if you know the respondent you must be truthful.
2. Proper decorum for a juror includes sitting up straight, attentiveness to the proceedings, and maintaining the dignity of the courtroom. Control your emotions (facial expressions, etc.). Do not talk during court sessions.
3. Do not talk during court sessions. Be mindful of creating other distractions such as movements, shuffling papers, etc.
4. Before court begins, the jury members will appoint a foreperson. This individual acts as a spokesperson for the jury.
5. Once in the jury room, the foreperson will lead the discussion in determining the appropriate disposition for the respondent.
6. Please keep in mind when constructing any disposition that the respondent has forty-five (45) days for completion.
7. During deliberations if any questions arise, the jury foreperson should write the question(s) down on a piece of paper, knock on the door, and give the paper to the bailiff who will pass the question(s) to the judge. The judge will answer the question(s), and the bailiff will bring back the answer.
8. Discuss the aggravating and mitigating circumstances of the case. For example, the seriousness of the offense, was anyone injured, what was the amount of property damage, etc.
9. Foreperson should then begin by asking for disposition suggestions based upon the facts presented. All jurors should remain in his or her seat, pay attention, and not talk about anything else until agreement has been reached. Each juror should be consulted and freely give his or her opinion. Listen to other's opinions with an open mind. Continue to deliberate until an agreement or compromise has been reached.
10. Remember not to compare dispositions from one case to another, whether it is a case heard earlier in the evening, or (if you are a respondent serving jury duty) a case you were involved in.
11. Please keep restorative justice principles in mind. Instead of being punitive, think of the best interest of the offender, the victim, and the community and how the harm can be repaired? Think about how the respondent can become a more productive member of society and involve the community in the disposition.
12. After deliberation, return to the same seat in the jury box as you sat during the hearing.
