February 2023

Thanks to those of you who attended our town hall budget meetings and shared your priorities for the County budget.

Keeping in mind that funding comes mainly from local taxpayers, my administration will develop a recommended budget that lives within our means and supports essential projects and services.

Look for my budget announcement in April, followed by County Council hearings and a final vote before the new fiscal year starts on July 1.

State of the County February 7

As your new county executive, I look forward to delivering my first State of the County address to the County Council and the public at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, February 7. Warehouse moratorium

Next Tuesday, my administration will submit legislation to the County Council that will put a temporary hold on warehouse development approvals in Harford County. I have heard from many citizens who are rightly concerned about the major impact these mega-developments can have on road networks and the surrounding community. The six-month pause will give my administration time to consider the best way forward for the business community and for our residents' quality of life.

Black History Month

February is Black History Month and an opportunity to learn about the struggle for racial equality in our community. Harford Community College's Harford Civil Rights Project, funded in part with a grant from county government, seeks to document and interpret this history, including first-hand accounts from area residents. Starting this month, and running through June 30, the Hays-Heighe House at HCC is hosting an exhibit about the project, and the Harford Civil Rights Project website has even more information, including images and videos that bring these stories to life.
